Contact information

PO Box 5721 Johnson City, TN 37602

p: 423-202-4964
e: nrs@nrsinc.org
w: nrsinc.org
f Neighborhood Reconcilication Services, Inc.

NRS, Inc. operates under the Real Justice model, a program of the International Institute of Restorative Practices (IIRP). For more information, visit iirp.org or realjustice.org

Repairing the harm

caused by conflict

© Neighborhood Reconciliation Services, Inc.

NRS, Inc. PO Box 5721 Johnson City, TN 37602

About Restorative Justice www.nrsinc.org

What is Neighborhood Reconciliation Services, Inc.

Mission Statement

The mission of Neighborhood Reconciliation Services, Inc. is to provide services, education and training that promote restorative practices in schools, courts and the community in Northeast

Tennessee.

What is restorative justice?

Restorative justice seeks to restore the relationships that have been harmed by conflict to create a stronger and more productive community

Conflict is a part of everyday life

Restorative justice practices enable people or organizations to constructively manage conflict by providing an opportunity for open communication between victims and offenders

Services

Facilitating restorative conferencesConsulting for restorative practices

What is a conference?

When a harming incident such as assault, bullying, theft or harassment occurs, the effects can be felt by many.

Those harmed, the victims, usually have no voice or input regarding how the incident is handled. They can be left with feelings of fear, anger or helplessness.

Those responsible, the offenders, often did not intend or anticipate the extent of the harm. They can be left with feelings of remorse or guilt, with no way to repair the harm they caused.

Restorative justice conferences provide a safe, structured forum where victims, offenders and community members can address the impact of the incident. The goal is not to penalize, but to restore.

Components

- Offenders describe the incident and take responsibility
 Victims tell their stories about the influence of the harm caused by the offender
 Other participants express how the event has affected them
 All participants discuss how the offender
- can repair the harm done

When and how can a conference be held?

A conference can only be held when the offender accepts responsibility for his or her actions and all parties agree to communicate with each other.

Only a trained facilitator, neutral to the incident at hand, can conduct the conference.

Outcomes

•All participants create an agreement that states what the offender must do to begin healing the harm

•The agreement must be fulfilled to completion

•The victim now has a voice and the offender is held accountable, allowing all parties to grow from the experience

Clients

School settings, including administrators, teachers, students and parents
Courts and parties to litigation
Landlords and tenants
Families
Neighbors
Churches and congregations
Business leaders
Civic organizations
Any person or group interested in incorporating conflict transformation techniques into their daily lives

Contact information

PO Box 5721 Johnson City, TN 37602

p: 423-202-4964
e: nrs@nrsinc.org
w: nrsinc.org
f Neighborhood Reconcilication Services, Inc.

NRS, Inc. operates under the Real Justice model, a program of the International Institute of Restorative Practices (IIRP). For more information, visit iirp.org or realjustice.org

Repairing the harm

caused by conflict

Johnson City, TN 37602

NRS, Inc. PO Box 5721

© Neighborhood Reconciliation Services, Inc.

What is a conference? www.nrsinc.org

What is a Restorative Justice Conference

What is a conference?

When a harming incident such as assault, bullying, theft or harassment occurs, the effects can be felt by many.

Those harmed, the victims, usually have no voice or input regarding how the incident is handled. They can be left with feelings of fear, anger or helplessness.

Those responsible, the offenders, often did not intend or anticipate the extent of the harm. They can be left with feelings of remorse or guilt, with no way to repair the harm they caused.

Restorative justice conferences provide a safe, structured forum where victims, offenders and community members can address the impact of the incident. The goal is not to penalize, but to restore.

When and how can a conference be held?

A conference can only be held when the offender accepts responsibility for his or her actions and all parties agree to communicate with each other.

Only a trained facilitator, neutral to the incident at hand, can conduct the conference.

Who gets to participate?

Those harmed, the victims, usually have no voice or input regarding how the incident is handled. They can be left with feelings of fear, anger or helplessness.

Those responsible, the offenders, often did not intend or anticipate the extent of the harm. They can be left with feelings of remorse or guilt, with no way to repair the harm they caused.

The victims and offenders are often not the only people involved in these negative situations; family, friends and members of the community are affected as well, and the healing process is not complete without their participation. All of these parties can participate in a conference.

Components

- •Offenders describe the incident and take responsibility
- •Victims tell their stories about the influence of the harm caused by the offender
- •Other participants express how the event has affected them

•All participants discuss how the offender can repair the harm done

Outcomes

•All participants create an agreement that states what the offender must do to begin healing the harm

•The agreement must be fulfilled to completion

•The victim now has a voice and the offender is held accountable, allowing all parties to grow from the experience

Is a conference right for me?

Normally, a judge will determine if a restorative justice conference is the appropriate solution for your situation. If you are not in court but are experiencing conflict, you can contact NRS, Inc. at 423-202-4964 for more information.

Clients

School settings, including administrators, teachers, students and parents
Courts and parties to litigation
Landlords and tenants
Families
Neighbors
Churches and congregations
Business leaders
Civic organizations
Any person or group interested in incorporating conflict transformation techniques into their daily lives